V2.1.4 32 Bit Limitations Office 10 is fully functional without a license
key. Full Office, Internet,
You can create a new

Publisher or Word document. You can edit and save the document, etc. But, you won't have the Excel ribbon, PPT button, etc. You can do things like printing and scanning, etc. Before downloading, you must confirm your edition. You may be downloading the OEM edition or the full retail edition. Both versions are fully functional, but the OEM edition requires activation. When using the retail version, you can only install/activate Office on a single computer. So, if you have Office installed on one computer, you can use a key from that computer on another. But, if you have a product key from a retail version on another, the activation won't work. So, you can't install the retail version on two computers, for example. Also, this key is only legal for the first six months. After that, you need the Volume License to continue using the software. But, if you have the Volume License, you can use the OEM key (which is the toolkit key). To use the key, you need Office installed on the machine. If you don't have Office installed, you can use the full retail version, or the OEM version. Another limitation is that it's not legal to distribute the key to your users. So, the only option is for the end-user to buy the retail or OEM version. The retail version is only legal for the first six months. After that, it's a Volume License. Version differences Office 2010 Toolkit And EZ-Activator There is a 25€ price difference if you buy from the publisher. A: This is my own solution as per my answer on a similar question. Thanks to @rickytb. I have used the Microsoft Office 2010 Toolkit EZ-Activator for Office Professional Plus 2010, Office Home and Student 2010, Office Professional Plus 2010 for Mac Follow the steps: Install: - SFC /SCANNOW: detect the existing software (to avoid removing with it) - Open Regedit - add the key "HKEY_LOCAL_MACHINE\Software\Wow6432Node\Micros oft\Windows\CurrentVersion\Uninstall\{K8P2D2AEB19326361895D4167FCE5E548F90D
